

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION

csac.history.wisc.edu > Document Collections > The Creation and Ratification of the Bill of Rights > Events Related to the Creation and Ratification of the Bill of Rights > The Harrisburg Convention Attempts to Amend the Constitution

New York Packet, 12 September 1788

The intended meeting at Harrisburgh in Pennsylvania having become the topic of much political disquisition—it may not be unacceptable to our readers to see the following resolutions of the Bucks-county meeting in the said State.

The moderation of these resolutions it is to be hoped will be imitated by all the friends to peace and good government.

Let the ill-judged epithet of Anti-federal be for ever emerged in the foul channel of folly and impertinence from whence it generated. We are now all Federal-men—and those who shall attempt to divide us into party hereafter, are wretches worthy to know no other happiness than that they now enjoy, pale misery and guilty hearts.

CITE AS: John P. Kaminski et al., eds., The Documentary History of the Ratification of the Constitution, Vol. XXXIX: Bill of Rights [3] (Madison, Wis.: Wisconsin Historical Society Press, 2023), 186–87.