List of State Convention Delegates by State, then by Town, County, or Shire

The following roster lists the delegates to the fifteen state conventions that considered the Constitution between 1787 and 1791. North Carolina was the only state that held two conventions, while the state of Vermont's convention ratified the Constitution in January 1791. The delegates for each state convention are listed by town, county, or shire which are arranged alphabetically. Each delegate's name is followed by a designation of that delegate's vote on the Constitution:

- (Y) indicates voting to ratify
- (N) opposition to ratification
- (A) indicates absence or abstinence from voting
- (NV) not voting
- (Vacated) indicates the seven delegates who were unseated by an election committee of the first North Carolina Convention.

The roster for the first North Carolina Convention is not a record of delegates' support for or opposition to the Constitution, but a record of delegates' assent or dissent to the report of the committee of the whole, which made North Carolina's ratification contingent on Congress and a second general convention considering the rights-based and structural amendments proposed in the report. That report, which was approved 184 to 83 on 2 August, made no mention of North Carolina rejecting the Constitution, only that North Carolina would not ratify the Constitution without significant amendments. Votes in favor of the committee's report, signified by (Antifed.), represent votes by Antifederalists. Votes in opposition to the report, signified by (Fed.), represent votes by Federalists, who advocated unconditional ratification or ratification with recommendatory, not previous, amendments.
